There are resources available to you which include; The Guide to Advancement, Eagle Application, and Eagle Scout Service Project Workbook. You can find the most recent versions online at: Scouting.org. The Guide to Advancement; Section 9 covers the application and service project.

Please read through all the forms and instructions before you write on any form. Print neatly and legibly, many people must read your application. All dates should be entered in MMDDYY format. The forms are available in fillable PDF format and you can type information onto them.

1. All requirements through and including your Unit Leader’s Conference, must be completed prior to your eighteenth birthday. The dates and signatures must reflect this.

2. To facilitate a prompt verification of your application at the council service center, include in your application package:
 - The Eagle Scout Rank Application fully filled out and properly signed and dated.
 - Your statement of ambitions and life purpose and list of leadership positions in school, church or community organizations
 - Optional, but highly recommended: The “Applicant’s Record” section of the merit badge blue cards for the 21 merit badges you use to fulfill Requirement #3 on the Eagle Application. The blue cards should be in the order entered on your Application. Plastic display sheets that hold 9 hobby collector cards are recommended. If any blue cards are missing, please contact your Unit Advancement Chairperson for the proper procedures to follow.
 - Your Eagle Scout Leadership Project Workbook - All portions – Proposal, Plan and Report
 - Copy all forms and Blue Cards for your records before turning in the application packet.
 - The application paperwork should be submitted in the envelope in which you received this kit, or in a 9x12 envelope with the “Eagle Advancement Kit, Eagle Scout Rank Application Processing” sheet, which can be downloaded from the council website (<http://svmbc.org/>), affixed to the outside.

3. After your Eagle Scout Rank Application has been verified, your packet will be returned to your District Advancement Committee representative, who will work with you and your unit leaders to set up an Eagle Scout Board of Review.

EAGLE SCOUT RANK ADVANCEMENT PROCEDURES

YOUR EAGLE SERVICE PROJECT

Plan and carry out your Eagle Scout Project carefully. You must use the Eagle Scout Service Project Workbook, in planning, getting approvals and in completing your project. Verify that all guidelines specified in the workbook will be met as you do your project. If you have a personal computer, the Eagle Scout Service Project Workbook, the Eagle Scout Application, and these instructions, are available on the Silicon Valley Monterey Bay Council Web site and may be printed on your printer. They must NOT be modified or edited but must be used as is. You may type your proposal directly into the writable PDF; however, you may not modify the titles and categories found in the workbook. If you have CAD drawings, sketches, or photographs that will not go into the PDF workbook you may add them as appendixes. You can find a link to the PDF version of the workbook on the council website below:

<https://www.scouting.org/programs/scouts-bsa/advancement-and-awards/eagle-scout-workbook/>

Note that:

You can start planning your project once you reach Life rank. You do not need to wait until all your merit badges are earned before planning and executing your project. Plan early and do your project as soon as your planning permits and you have gotten all the necessary project approvals.

Planning, development, and leadership are key ingredients and must be demonstrated in completing the project. You are the project PLANNER, BUDGETER, and MANAGER.

The project must be of real value and of significant magnitude. While there are no pre-determined minimums for time, number of people, or effort used to complete the project, remember that you are a candidate for the highest rank that Scouting can award. Pick a project you will be proud of and do your very best!

Talk over your project ideas and proposal with your Unit Leader (Scoutmaster, Team Coach, or Crew Advisor). Get their counsel and guidance. Also talk to the people who will benefit from your project. Make sure they understand and agree with the project. Ask them to identify someone to represent their interests in the project. This representative is the person who will approve your project proposal, any changes to the project, and certify that the project was completed.

Your project proposal must be approved before you start doing the work. The “Project Proposal” section of the workbook must be completed to get that approval. Approval signatures should be recorded in the workbook and include; your unit leader (Scoutmaster), your unit committee, and the person representing the benefiting group. Only after you have those three signatures should you contact your District Advancement Committee representative for their approval. Only after all four approvals and signatures have been gathered should you fully develop your Project Plan. Most units have Eagle Advisors or Coaches and it is highly recommended that you work with one of them to develop and review your Plan before you begin working on your project.

Use the workbook throughout your project to assist you in documenting and completing your project. Think about the information you need to include in your report and gather it as you work. Keep a good set of notes identifying; who, where, when, what time, how much, etc. Take photos before, during and after the project.

Complete the Final Report in the Eagle Scout Service Project Workbook.

- The final report should be well done. It will be of prime importance at your Eagle Board of Review
- Use your workbook, your planning materials, your notes, and any other materials or photos to help you describe and sell your project to your Eagle Scout Board of Review.
- A sequence of photos of the project as it progresses, including you and the volunteers working, is very helpful during your board of review. It will help the members of the board understand what you did, how you did it and why you picked the project.

Once the project work is finished, get your final signatures in the “Approvals for Completed Project” section of the workbook. Don’t forget to sign it yourself and get the signature of your Scoutmaster and the person representing the benefiting organization. A signed letter/statement of acceptance of the project from the benefitting organization may substitute for their signature. In that case a copy of the letter of acceptance should be attached to the final report of your project.
